

Training and facilitating workshops

Training: keep yourself at the top of your game with practice-oriented seminars

Do you want to develop yourself professionally? Are you ready to exchange your personal experiences in a learning group with other specialists?

Benoit Consulting seminars feature relatively little theory and plenty of practical exercises. The combination of active preliminary work and preparation by the participants and intensive training on the day ensures lasting success.

Above all else, specific questions and examples from current professional situations are required. Practical work guided by an expert with many years of management experience creates an ideal learning environment. Where required, one-to-one follow-up coaching allows any outstanding individual questions to be considered in detail.

Facilitation of workshops

Are you planning a workshop lasting one or more days, and looking for an external moderator? Benoit Consulting offers you tailor-made solutions and will work closely with you and your team throughout the process.
